Legislators sue to enforce war clause

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Forty-five members of Congress filed suit Tuesday seeking to prevent President Bush from committing U.S. troops to a Persian Gulf war without congressional approval.

"This is a historic opportunity for the federal courts to decide who has the right to declare war," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., who initiated the lawsuit.

"We believe the president has a responsibility in this situation to send a declaration of war to the Congress of the United States."

In Paris with President Bush, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the administration would not comment on the legal aspects of the congressmen seeking suit, but added, "We believe this lawsuit is unnecessary in light of the commitment of the president to working with the Congress to keep them completely informed."

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, and lawyers asked that a hearing be held within 10 days on their request for a preliminary injunction.

The lawsuit centers around the war powers clause of the Constitution, which grants Congress the authority to declare war.

The suit does not address the 1973 War Powers Act passed by Congress that prevents the president from keeping U.S. forces in an area of imminent danger without seeking approval from Congress.

Dellums called the War Powers Act a "worthless piece of legislation" that he voted against in 1973. He said basing the suit on a provision in the Constitution would remove the political arguments that courts have traditionally avoided.

"We went straight to the Constitution," Dellums said.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh declined to comment on the suit.

"The suit involves very complicated questions involving the standing to sue executive

Pettit wants trust between faculty, administration

Chancellor Lawrence Pettit addressed the faculty as "colleagues" at the annual general Faculty Meeting Tuesday.

Pettit stressed collegiality between the faculty and administration to guide the University through the future.

Pettit said said he is encouraging collegial decision making and enhancing communication.

"I would urge especially that we strive for true collegiality and mutual trust and respect as we discuss matters of university governance and administration," Pettit said.

"Our dilemma, of course, is that this kind of self-discipline is most essential as we face hard times politically and economically," he said.

Challenger fails to oust Thatcher in party election

LONDON (UPI) - Challenger Michael Heseltine failed Tuesday to oust Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher outright as head of the Conservative Party, but mustered enough votes to force a second ballot that could sweep her from power.

Thatcher was four votes shy of a victory to continue her 15-year tenure as leader, receiving 204 votes to 152 for Heseltine in the vote of Conservative members of Parliament. Because 16 members abstained, Heseltine needed fewer than the required 159 of 372 votes to put their contest to another vote.

If Thatcher loses the party leadership, she also will fall from the post of prime minister, which she has held for 11 years.

Both Thatcher, 65, and Heseltine, 57, said they would compete on the second ballot scheduled for Nov. 27, setting the stage for a

Illinois could be in for recession — comptroller

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Illinois' "bleak" financial picture may reflect a recession in the state's economy, according to the comptroller's office.

"Soft" corporate revenue the state is collecting may tie in with talk about a recession in the economy, said Jerry Owens, spokesman for the comptroller.

"The fiscal picture does not look good," Owens said. "The state is going to see some tough times."

In his monthly report for October, Comptroller Roland Burris said the low balance in the state's general revenue fund paints a "very bleak" fiscal picture for 1991.

"Revenue is not coming in as fast as expected," Owens said.

"The revenue that is coming in is not enough to cover what is being spent."

Owens said similar conditions existed in the early 1980s when the country was experiencing recessions.

"We had to do a lot of belt-tightening then," he said. "Gov. (James R.) Thompson even called for an increase in taxes."

The state's balance was $151 million at the end of October, according to the report, down $209 million from last October. The balance at this time last year was $360 million.

Owens said the situation of the low balance is "precarious" and Burris warned the General

Two more SIUC students to serve in gulf

SIUC students are trickling to the sands of Saudi Arabia for military duty in Operation Desert Shield, and administrators expect at least nine more to be called before the semester ends.

This week, two more SIUC students will report to their army units for deployment to Saudi Arabia bringing the total number to 22, said Dan Nadler, director of Transitional Programs.

"We expect at least nine more to leave before the semester ends," he said.

Steve File and Andy Hancock, both seniors in administrative justice and both specialist fours in the 233rd Military Police unit in Springfield have been ordered to report to their station today.

Files said his unit will then travel to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., Friday. He said he was not at liberty to discuss where the unit will go from there.

File is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity and has worked for the University Book Store security for three years. Hancock is a member of the Delta Chi Fraternity and works at the American Tap.

There have been three faculty members called to active duty, said Bill Capie, executive director of personnel services.

With three weeks left in the fall semester some military students are afraid their semester school work would be flushed if they were called to active duty.

File said he talked to his professor and was told he could either receive an incomplete for the semester or take the grade which he has accumulated so far this semester.

He said he took the grade.

Students who withdraw after the 10th week because of military duty are able to receive grades and credit hours for classes they were passing, Nadler said.

File, who is one class short of graduating in the spring, said he is ready to go to Saudi Arabia and explains his activation as "just one of those things."

"The United States has paid for my education for the last three years and going to Saudi Arabia is the least I can do," he said.

"My family is pretty upset, but they've got to grin and bear it," he said.

"My girlfriend isn't too hot about me leaving either."

File said he was disappointed he didn't get to tell all his friends good by because of the short activation notice.

At the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, 70 students have been activated for military duty since the gulf crisis broke out.

A spokeswoman for the vice chancellor's office said that number is based on those who have applied

The Saluki basketball team ended its exhibition season with a 103-96 victory over the Latvian Republic National Team Tuesday night in the Arena.

"It was nice to get a victory," SIUC head coach Rich Herrin said. "We're not as smooth or as sharp as we like to be, but we got help off the bench. The team we played tonight gave a good effort. We knew it was going to be a physical ballgame."

The two teams committed 54 personal fouls, including four technical fouls by Latvia's Kariis Muiznieks, Raimonds Miglikieks and two by his brother Igors Miglikieks.

The Salukis capitalized on the fouls by hitting 32 of 46 from the free-throw line. Junior forward Kelvan Lawrence and junior guard Matt Wynn combined to hit five of six free throws resulting from the technical fouls, putting the Salukis up 73-66 at 13:32 in the second half.

The crowd of 4,302 came to their feet to show their disapproval of Latvia's style of play.

The Salukis were led by senior guard Sterling Mahan, who poured in 24 points, including 10 of 12 free throws.

On the boards, red-shirt freshman Emeka Okenwa led the Dawgs with 11 rebounds, followed by senior forward Rick Shipley, who contributed 10 rebounds along with 17 points.

"I've got to work on a lot of things," Okenwa said. "As the season goes on, I think I will improve in most of my game, but I'm happy so far."

Sophomore center Ashraf Amaya helped the Salukis' cause with 18 points and 6 rebounds.

The Latvian team took 54-52 lead into the locker room at halftime, after a series of 3-point buckets by Wynn and Raimonds Miglikieks.

The Salukis didn't take the lead for keeps until Latvia hit their spell of foul trouble.

"The biggest complaint was we didn't put people away when we had the chance," Herrin said. "They (Latvia) know they can shoot the free throw and we put them on the line too much. We did some things right. We also were not as consistent as we'd like to be. You just try to get better each game."

The Salukis went up 95-89 with 2:54 left in the ballgame when Mahan hit a 3-pointer. The Salukis were unable to close the door and traded baskets and fouls with the Latvian squad.

Finally when sophomore Tyrone Bell hit one of two free throws at :36, putting the Salukis up 100-96 it seemed the Dawgs were in control.

Mahan and Lowery combined for three more points from the line to close the door on the Latvian squad.

The Salukis open their regular season Saturday at home against Western Kentucky, which is under the new direction of first-year coach Ralph Willard.

Women's basketball hopes to strike it big in Las Vegas

The Saluki women's basketball team will be taking a gamble the Nov. 23-24 at the University of Nevada Las Vegas 7-Up Desert Classic and a good showing could win the Saluki women a twenty.

Not 20 dollars, but a Top 20 ranking. In UPI poll of women's Division I-A college team Monday, it lists the Top 25 squads. Right after, it shows other teams receiving votes and the Saluki women are the third team named, placing them at No. 28.

"It's important that we win the first game against San Francisco and play well against Las Vegas," head coach Cindy Scott said. "Our goal is to get into the top 20 and losing the opener would stymie those chances early."

The first foe of the 1990-91 campaign is San Francisco. The Lady Dons are coming of a strong 19-8 season, but the loss of two all-conference players to graduation should lessen the threat to SIUC. Junior guard Joy Boyenga should lead the Lady Dons, she's coming off a season in which she averaged 12 points a game.

However, the Salukis can't afford to relax at all against the Lady Dons. The Salukis season-opener record is definitely not record-setting. In the last eight years, the Salukis have had six 20-win seasons, but the squad has lost all eight season openers. Scott has a

Gateway honors Olden

SIUC volleyball player sophomore Dana Olden was named to the 1990 Gateway All-Conference Second Team.

Olden, the 1989 Gateway Newcomer of the Year, ranks in 10 of SIUC's all-time records including No. 3 in attack percentage (.256), No. 7 in block assists (134), No. 8 in block solos (64) and No. 9 in kills (736) and spike attempts (1854).

Olden had season-highs in kills (454), spike attempts (1032) and attack percentage (.296). Her 50 block solos, 87 block assists and 283 digs also went down as season-high records.

Other season highlights for Olden included being named the Gateway Player of the Week for Sept. 3-9 and being chosen as the Most Valuable Player at the Northern Illinois Invitational.

At the Ball State Invitational Aug. 31 through Sept. 1, Olden was a unanimous pick to the All-Tournament team and a week later she was named to the All-Tournament team at the Saluki Invitational.

Bush calls for 'patience' in dealing with gulf crisis

United Press International

Iraq promised Tuesday to release all Germans held hostage in Iraq and Kuwait, while President Bush answered questions on the Persian Gulf crisis by counseling, "just be patient and all will be well." U.S. Gen. Colin Powell, meanwhile, said there is no evidence Iraq is really deploying a quarter of a million more troops in Kuwait as it announced Monday. Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev held talks on how to oust Iraqi President Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, reports said.

Rumors of U.S.-Soviet divergence dismissed

PARIS (UPI) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev affirmed Tuesday that there was "no divergence" with the United States over the Persian Gulf crisis and maintained that Iraq's "brutal violation" of Kuwait "cannot go unpunished." In a live interview with the French television network TF1, Gorbachev dismissed suggestions of a rift between the two powers on using force in the gulf. But he stopped short of saying the Soviets would support a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force. "In our analysis and approach there is no divergence," Gorbachev said.

Israeli officer, four Palestinians killed in clash

JERUSALEM (UPI) — An Israeli officer and four Palestinian fighters were killed Tuesday in a firefight north of Israel's self-declared "security zone" in southern Lebanon. Security sources in Lebanon said the guerrillas belonged to Fatah Revolutionary Council of Abu Nidal and were on their way to attack Israeli targets inside the security zone or in Israel. During the 30-minute clash near the village of Ein Ata, 50 Israeli commandos and Palestinians guerrillas fought with automatic rifles and rocket grenades, the sources said. The Israeli troops opened fire, killing four gunmen and possibly a fifth.

Business leaders call for competency exams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Business leaders told Congress Tuesday all high school students should be required to take a national competency examination to ensure they have adequate skills for the working world, but Education Department officials rejected the idea. At a House Education and Labor Committee hearing, four business leaders testified that America's competitiveness is being jeopardized by a generation of children leaving high school without a firm grasp of basic skills. The committee generally agreed that the exams are necessary, but said extra help must be given to disadvantaged students early.

Atlantis finishes mission, lands in Florida

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Atlantis astronauts, diverted by high winds in California, glided to a smooth touchdown Tuesday at the Kennedy Space Center, capping a successful military flight with the first Florida landing in 5 1/2 years. The primary goal of the year's fifth shuttle mission — the seventh and last flight to be conducted in total secrecy — was accomplished Friday when the astronauts are believed to have deployed a classified Pentagon satellite that may ultimately be used to support U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Hubble telescope photographs Saturn storm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saturn has apparently "burped" a gigantic storm, spewing a huge cloud of ammonia gas crystals that has encircled nearly the entire mammoth planet, scientists said Wednesday. The unusual storm was first spotted in September by amateur astronomers, prompting scientists to convince NASA to allow them to use the Hubble Space Telescope to photograph the area in detail earlier this month. The storm was about three times the diameter of Earth when it was first detected on Saturn's equator in September.

Group offers support, information for families

Local people unite to help loved ones of soldiers serving in gulf

By Karen Radius
Staff Writer

More than 22 people came to the Herrin Civic Center Monday night to participate in a newly-formed support group for those whose family members have been called to action in the Middle East.

"The one thing I want to do is let the public know...we are all in need," said Denise Kennedy, from Carterville, who started the group to help others cope with the emotions involved when a family member is called to action in the gulf.

Kennedy, whose son, Steve Spillman, was called up from the 101st Airborne in Fort Campbell, Ky. said she had been to a support group meeting in Paducah and said they shared letters and talked with people.

"The people I work with get tired of hearing it, but I want to talk about my son 24 hours a day," she said. "I want people to be able to call me up and talk about it. I hope that happens with the people here (the support group)."

"There is a lot of information that we can pass through and share with one another," she said. "My son said the weather is not a problem over there now, they have had trouble with snakes."

Dorothy Degenhardt, from Murphysboro, has made more than 1,800 pins with red, white and blue ribbons representing the people in the Middle East and yellow ribbons for the soldiers who were in Vietnam.

"She makes them so people won't forget, they remind people to think about it or say a prayer," said Nancy Ellet, Degenhardt's daughter.

Degenhardt said she has a son and a foster son overseas now and a daughter in the navy who will be called up if fighting occurs in the gulf.

The mail is being opened by the Iraqi government, nothing with religious connotations are supposed to be sent and no stamps with the American flag are supposed to be used, Kennedy said.

Degenhardt said she still sent one of her sons a Christmas tree and had it wrapped it in Christmas paper.

"I bought a Christmas tree, but it was so depressing," she said. "Christmas trees are always the hardest things to send."

Representatives from the American Red Cross presented information on the benefits offered by Red Cross and discussed the problems people are currently facing in the Middle East.

Beth Parker, of the American Red Cross, passed out brochures on how to cope with emergencies and the relationship of the Red Cross with the military.

According to a Red Cross report, some of the problems soldiers and their families encounter include absence of resources of help and emotional support, military requirements and policies that influence and complicate personal problem and lost letters.

"We have a long-standing arrangement with the military," Parker said. "They guide us in what they want done and we take information and verify it."

The Red Cross cannot grant military leave, but can transmit messages from families to the soldiers, she said.

Many people at the meeting said their family members on duty have lost weight because the food is terrible and have not received letters.

The needs of the people who attended the group Monday night varied.

There were several women whose newly-wedded husbands have been called up.

Also, there were many people whose sons and daughters had been sent.

"I had a husband in Vietnam and the feeling is nothing like having a son over there," said Dana Vaughn of Herrin.

Charles Butler, from Logan, began discussing how long the war would last.

"Iraq is a powerful military threat in the Middle East, led by a fanatic who gasses his own people," Butler said. "They cannot let this man stay in power very long."

Pentagon to cook dinners for troops' holiday in gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon is trying to cook up Thanksgiving dinner for more than 200,000 soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen in the Middle East.

Spokesman Pete Williams said today the Pentagon is preparing 105,000 pounds of turkey and a variety of trimmings to serve to the troops — including as many of the front line forces as possible — and the Saudi Arabian government is kicking in another 60,000 pounds of roast beef to add an extra main course to the dinner plate.

In addition, said Williams, officials hope to give virtually everyone at least part of the day off to relax, play sports or attend religious services.

"There will be quite an endeavor under way to try to serve Thanksgiving dinners to as many people as possible. It could well be over 200,000 people," said Williams, adding that Saudis and American families in Saudi Arabia have volunteered to invite troops into their homes, as have residents of other Persian Gulf countries.

President Bush will be visiting a number of units around the country on Thanksgiving Day and will be accompanied by leaders of the House and Senate.

For troops who do not get back to field kitchen for the fancy meal, said Williams, the Pentagon has cooked up a number of its "T-Ration" trays — ones that can be reheated on steam tables — filled with turkey, mashed potatoes, gravy, dressing and cranberry sauce.

In addition, Williams said the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service will be broadcasting two professional football games — Detroit-Denver and Washington-Dallas — on both radio and television on Thursday and the radio service, which is more widely available throughout the country, will also be carrying the West Virginia-South Carolina college game.

And, he said, AT&T will be offering soldiers within Saudi Arabia free three-minute telephone calls home.

Williams said satellite ground stations have been beefed up to handle the heavy load of troop calls from Saudi Arabia, which seemed to overtax the local telephone networks to the point that other calls could not get out of the country.

Safety tips could reduce deer hunting accidents

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Deer hunting season opened across the state last weekend resulting in one fatality.

Illinois is divided into five regions by the Illinois Department of Conservation. Region five covering 27 counties in southeastern Illinois was the only one to report a fatality, according to Larry Closson, chief of the division of law enforcement for the Department of Conservation.

Friday's accident in Franklin County apparently involved one hunter shooting his partner after mistaking him for a deer, said Jack Cohlmeier, region five captain.

"The biggest thing in accidents is that the hunter didn't I.D. the target before pulling the trigger," Cohlmeier said. "There are numerous safety tips but accidents all seem to end up at that."

Closson said there are several easy steps to follow to help reduce accidents.

Hunters should be sure to wear blaze orange hats and vests, clearly identify the target, shoot only during daylight and if using a tree stand, use a safety belt to attach themselves to the tree.

Deer hunting shotgun season involves two 3-day weekends. The first part of the season was Nov. 16, 17 and 18 with the second half being the weekend of Dec. 14, 15 and 16.

Bow hunting season for deer is open until Dec. 31 but bow hunters cannot hunt during the shotgun season, Closson said.

While no region is known for a high number of accidents, region five differs from the others in terms of geography.

"With the Shawnee and so much public land hunters don't know where other hunters are," Closson said. "This makes it more important to use flashlights, to wear blaze orange and to make sure there's a backstop behind the target in case the hunter misses."

"Sometimes there are very few (accidents) and sometimes there is a bizarre number where ridiculous accidents are traced back to safety violations."

Award-winning duo deserves award loss

MILLI VANILLI'S GRAMMY-WINNING album was ironically titled "Girl You Know It's True." Obviously, they weren't talking about whether or not they actually sung on the album.

The dreadlocked members of the duo of Rob Pilatus and Fab Morvan lip-synched their way into the hearts of millions.

They were heralded as bigger than Elvis and better than the Beatles.

But their star shot right out of the sky last week when their producer fired the duo and announced that they did not sing on their debut album or during any of their live performances.

IRONICALLY STILL, THEY EVEN lip-synched during their performance during the Grammy Award show.

Lip-synching isn't a crime. If it were, a lot of stars would be arrested.

But putting their name on an album on which they didn't utter a single note is blatant fraud.

The National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences was right to strip them of their Grammy.

A Grammy is a symbol of recording excellence. And Milli Vanilli certainly wasn't involved in any spectacular recording.

They just happened to be spectacular looking.

PILATUS AND MORVAN MAY NOT have sold their voices, but they definitely sold their style.

Had they taken the honest approach, they still might have been successful. After all, our culture tends to put more emphasis on looks than on intelligence and talent.

And having someone do someone else's work happens all the time.

Politicians don't write their own speeches. Actors don't write their own lines. Some celebrities don't even write their own books.

But at least the public knows that.

Letters

Minority organizations justified

This letter is written in response to Sean Newlin's article that was on Nov. 15.

First of all Sean, before you try to remind African-American students of the excellent privileges we have because we can have organizations that promote the positive uplifting of the African-American community, get the names correct.

If you are unsure as to what I am talking about, I will remind you. You called the Miss Eboness pageant, the "Miss Ebony contest."

This may seem like a minor mistake, but it is misrepresentations like this that has kept the African-American community in the dark for centuries.

This also shows that, as usual, people do not know what they are talking about when they talk about us, even though they think they do.

You say you agree that racism and discrimination still exist, and I am happy for you. But your assumption that it is the African-American students segregating themselves rather than the white Americans segregating them, is weak.

We have our own organizations to uplift and enlighten the African-American people. Most campus-wide organizations tend to have Euro-centric ideas. Because of this we have had to form our own. Our needs have been neglected and minimized. Because of this, many African-American people are unaware of the major contributions that the African-Americans have given to society.

A couple of years ago there was an instructor who was a positive role model, but he was excused from the University. I am referring to Dr. Luke Tripp, a professor who taught African-American Studies.

He tried to encourage students to be proud of who we are and also encouraged us not to settle for less than the best in life. He was fired! The so-called reason for this was because he did not have enough published works.

It is my opinion, as well as many others, that he was excused from his position because he was viewed as a threat to the survival of the racist community at SIUC.

Will your Euro-centric organizations encourage your youth to strive for the best in life as you encourage your own? NO! Will your Euro-centric organizations bring just as many African-American lecturers and speakers to this University as it does white American speakers to address issues concerning ALL students? NO!

These are a few reasons (and believe me, there are many more) that we have African-American organizations and contests for ourselves.

You do not need to create the "White Together Organization," "White Affairs," "White Studies Program," or hold the "Miss Ivory Contest" because you already have them. Here is some future advice to Sean Newlin, and anyone else with similar viewpoints: if you want to give your viewpoint on us, do some research about us.—Ronna M. Jones and Kennard Tucker, paralegal studies.

Atkinson gets gold mine, others shaft

"I can't even be around people who smoke because contact smoke from somebody else is the equivalent of one pack to my scary little lungs."—Actress Elizabeth Taylor said in reference to giving up smoking after her near-fatal bout with pneumonia.

"One small flare-up there could lead to a huge war in a matter of minutes."—Rep. Glenna Poshard said, criticizing President Bush for leaving Congress in the dark about the Persian Gulf.

"They want to shut down education."—Omar Kasam, president of the General Union of Palestine Students at SIUC, said in reference to forming a sister university relationship with Birzeit University in Palestine.

"There's the same talk, the same jokes and the same procedures. Cadets are cadets wherever you go."—Craig Hansen, a former SIUC cadet who claims all cadets are clones of each other.

"My policy? Sir, I am a soldier. I do not have a policy."—French General Henri Maitland.

Well, our local backstabbing, AWOL U.S. Army Reservist was finally arrested for desertion and recently reprimanded with an OTH, Other Than Honorable discharge.

She is now a free woman and if there was any integrity left in her, she would voluntarily reimburse the government for the money she swindled from them.

Now her comrades in the 300th Adjunct General Postal Company have to perform their duties with one less soldier. I bet Ol' Steph's popularity in her former company isn't too high anymore.

Atkinson gets the gold mine while her fellow soldiers get the shaft. Atkinson's charges as a conscientious objector and being opposed to all war and violence is a facade designed to camouflage her cowardice.

Namely because she not only joined the military, but she re-enlisted after her first tour and suddenly got cold feet when her unit was called to active duty.

Maybe all the stress and strenuous combat training of her postal company finally got to her?....Give me a break! You can't get much farther to the rear in a unit like that.

Miss Atkinson has had her day as a celebrity of sorts. Her problems are just beginning. Her college education is now worthless.

With an OTH discharge for desertion from the armed forces, no decent employer is going to want to hire her for a job.

If she is disloyal to Uncle Sam, she might just as well be disloyal to her boss.

She can start wearing tie-dye clothes, smoking dope and try getting a job with MAPP protesting war, but I don't think MAPP has any paying positions.

As an honorably discharged veteran and the brother of a Marine machine gunner standing on the Saudi boarder, I think Stephanie Atkinson is a disgrace to this country and a worthless, lying low-life who should be locked in a jail cell for life and buried on some remote island after she dies.

My brother may live through, get wounded or killed in the crisis.

But whatever happens, he volunteered for it, and he, like his fellow soldiers and Marines, must accept the consequences of his actions.

If I were Atkinson's parents, I would be ashamed of raising such a disrespectful, irresponsible human being and disown her.

If I were Stephanie Atkinson, I'd have enough pride to take my own life.

I wish the U.S. Army would revoke her citizenship, since the oath of enlistment didn't mean anything in the first place.

"A corporal was apprehended for desertion two days ago. He was flogged 30 times with a whip, but we will never be rid of this vile scourge until we can shoot one or two of them," said Major William Burroughs, commandant of the Marine Corps 1787.—Brad Striegel, freshman, pre-major.

Quotable Quotes

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Compassion key to end conflict

The DE on Monday Nov. 12 had three extremely interesting news items.

That this is to say if you care about the state of the world; if you care whether the Persian Gulf Bonanza is a "just cause" war; or care about the state of the U.S. roads and bridges.

Bishop Thomas Gumbleton of Detroit is urging Catholics involved in military activities in the gulf, to give it up and declare that they are "conscientious objectors."

Some Catholics will feel that the church in this country should take such a stand.

Others: will be appalled. And as Gumbleton attempts to put this before the bishops in Washington, many eyes will be watching to see if the church is willing to take a stand.

If the church is willing to tell its people that enough arms are enough, and that this country continues to strangle its people with the continued huge military budget.

During the early years of President Reagan's administration there were huge increases in the military budget. And those increases have never been rolled back.

The Cold War is said to be over, but rather than cut military spending we choose to help reduce the deficit by cutting medical care.

Are the eyes so blind that they will not see what is written daily in black and white before our eyes?

A young man in a letter to your paper that day stated that he was in the militia.

He said he did not agree with President Bush's force in the gulf, because the bottom line was oil, but that he would go because he had signed an agreement.

Does everyone who signs an agreement with an employer have to carry out his duties, if in fact those duties become unjust?

Does that individual then not have the duty to decide whether or not what he is doing is morally wrong? Or have we all become robots?

And the Comrade Vladimir will go to the front lines, because, it is my country, right or wrong.

If the bishops call themselves Christians, they must work as peacemakers, and push this message of love, compassion and brotherhood upon their followers. The bishop does well to advise Catholics in that desert to lay down their arms.

Would the invading General Collins, so triumphant in brutalized Panama, had laid down his arms in that "unjust cause war?"

We have become so brutal and callous over the years, and yet call ourselves a "Christian country." Which Christ do we follow?

Surely not the simple carpenter from Nazareth who preached,

"blessed are the peacemakers."

We follow some idolatry which says that the gun is God, the tank is God, the nuclear bomb is Christ. This is the only way to be a peacemaker with a bomb in every garage.

This will keep the bad guys away. Whatever happened to the "kinder, gentler" we were supposed to become?

This country, having given up any vestige of truth and humility, has embraced the garrison mentality, and these rulers see that as a sign of weakness, and "it will not stand."

We do not care to grow in gentleness and goodness.

We care only to police the world, to produce more arms, to sell more arms, to give more arms away, to fight and to plant the seeds in other nations so that they too may fight a war.

The Soviets and the United States have been doing this for years.

Let's give up on the bloated military, and start to rebuild our roads and bridges you said were in such disarray.

But let's pray for a miracle that our compassion and kindness may be rebuilt so that we care more for starved, tortured, disappeared peoples than we do for capturing one dictator, or for recapturing the oil fields of Kuwait.—Elsie Speck, Carbondale.

Hitler, bigots compared

I am writing in response to a letter that appeared in the DE on Nov. 16. This letter centered on the fact that minorities, particularly African-Americans, receive unfair advantages. Since I don't want to give the author of the before mentioned article any credit, I'll just refer to him as Mr. Bigot.

Let me try and draw a parallel between some of Mr. Bigot's ideas and the ideas of another famous individual who was disgruntled with his situation in life.

Times were hard and people were beginning to lose faith and hope in their society. Along came this man who said, "Look, they have everything so easy and we have nothing! It is their fault that we are in this terrible situation, let's kill them!" Do you remember the name Hitler, Mr. Bigot?

I apologize if I sound too brash, but I'm not going to sugar coat this anymore. I'm tired of white trash like Mr. Bigot, widening the gap between the races.

He claims that he doesn't want to "come across as a prejudice person," yet he stereotypes African-American as less than intelligent. He does this by claiming that they "don't return after one or two years because of grades."

Maybe Mr. Bigot should check the number of African-American students who complete all four years of education at predominantly black universities where the individuals there do not have to worry about constantly defending themselves against morons like him.

Mr. Bigot then tries to justify his position with his noble prize winning statements about our "soldiers in Kuwait" and "Kuwait soldiers will kill American soldiers."

Hello! Is anybody home? Maybe Mr. Bigot spends so much time studying that he didn't realize that our troops were in Saudi Arabia.

Maybe Mr. Bigot was in the lab when Iraq invaded Kuwait and that is why we are in a conflict with Iraq.

I believe that Mr. Bigot's brain has turned into silly-puddy and perhaps he is not thinking correctly. I hope and pray for all of our society that this is the case.—Jeff Still, senior, social studies.

Coal needs utilization

All I ever hear is how much gas costs. Are we going to keep sitting around and letting the Middle East countries tell us how to run our lives? I say no.

Did you know that we are sitting on one of the largest deposits of oil in the country? Yes, coal!

During WWII when United States and its allies surrounded Germany, 92 percent of fuel and oil came from coal.

Actually, it was started but stopped by oil companies. We have enough coal reserves to last years.

Let's get out from "under the barrel" from the Middle East. I've asked many miners and professors, but everyone always says the same thing: "Well, I don't know why we don't use coal." Someone should tell us.—Richard C. Voyles, Wabash Valley College.

On financial aid? Veto SIU law school

Several weeks ago I spoke to a number of students at the SIU career fair about attending law school at SIU.

At that time I recommended that SIU undergraduates consider attending our law school because of its excellent staff, students and library.

What I neglected to mention to those students was that only those students who do not require financial aid at the start of a semester should apply.

If you are a prospective law student who requires financial aid, I recommend that you visit other state and private schools with financial aid programs and compare them to SIU's.

If you choose to attend law school here and require financial aid, you should expect to have your registration cancelled, to have your tuition assistantships charged against your award (whether or not you applied for it or are eligible).

Expect to have tuition assistantships not credited, to take out one or more short term loans per semester (and pay them a fee for the privilege of letting you do this).

Also expect to charge your living, auto and book expenses to your credit cards.

Expect to make a dozen visits and a dozen phone calls to Woody Hall, to receive your aid in October or November.

A courteous and dedicated financial aid staff is present and interested in assisting students in spite of the obstacles their management have put in front of them (defective computers, defective software, inadequate training and overall lack of leadership).

If you are married and have children or other dependents, I recommend that you attend another school.

It is simply not fair to subject your wife or children to the constant strain of not having the promised loan money to pay your bills.

I pass this information along to those I spoke to at the fair because had I had this information when I was applying to law schools I would have attended one 100 miles north.—Dan O'Brien, president, student bar association.

New AIDS vaccine gets go-ahead for human tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Human tests are starting on a possible AIDS vaccine that appears to be better designed and more promising in chimpanzees than other vaccines being tested in people, researchers said Tuesday.

Government-affiliated AIDS researchers and officials from Immuno-U.S. Inc. of Rochester, Mich., announced the Food and Drug Administration has approved tests of their jointly developed AIDS vaccine in about 60 healthy people.

The genetically engineered vaccine, called IMMUNO-Ag, is the sixth AIDS vaccine authorized by the FDA for human testing but is the first to be developed in conjunction with the government. Tests of the other AIDS vaccines have not yet produced any conclusive results.

IMMUNO-Ag first drug to be co-developed by government

If the new vaccine encounters no roadblocks along the testing pathway, Belshe estimated it would still be at least five to 10 years before it could be generally available to the American public.

The laboratory-made protein the vaccine uses to spur an immune system response more closely mimics the natural AIDS protein, called gp160, than previous candidate vaccines, researchers said.

"In many cases, retaining the native shape of the viral molecule is crucial to a vaccine's ability to stimulate a strong immune response. We don't know if this is true for HIV (AIDS virus) molecules used in vaccines, but these clinical trials will help answer this very important question," Dr. Anthony Fauci, head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said in a statement.

Dani Bolognesi, an AIDS vaccine expert at Duke University School of Medicine in Durham, N.C., agreed that the new vaccine's gp160 protein is "without a doubt much more natural" than those used in other potential AIDS vaccines being tested in humans.

Another encouraging sign for the new vaccine is that it has protected one chimpanzee from infection by the AIDS virus for nearly three years, Bolognesi said, noting other vaccines being tested under the supervision of the National Institutes of Health did not show similar promise in animal tests.

However, Bolognesi emphasized it is impossible to tell how well the vaccine will work in humans until it is given to patients. In addition, he repeated past predictions that the best AIDS vaccine to protect the general public over a long time period will probably be a "cocktail" of viral components, not just one protein unit.

"This is probably not the ultimate vaccine," said Bolognesi, a member of NIH's AIDS Vaccine Selection Committee.

Dr. Martha Eibl of the Immuno

Group's branch in Austria emphasized the vaccine's performance in animal tests, saying it triggered "the longer" known period of protection of any candidate AIDS vaccine studied in chimps.

Based on work in mice, guinea pigs, goats, monkeys and chimps, Eibl said the current vaccine formulation "can be considered safe for clinical use" in people.

Dr. Robert Belshe, a medical professor at St. Louis University School of Medicine and head of the vaccine study, said: "We are delighted to have the opportunity to evaluate this exciting candidate vaccine in clinical trials."

In the first phase of testing, 20 volunteers will receive low doses of the vaccine.

Alcohol abuse linked to mental disorders

Boston (UPI) — People who suffer from mental disorders ranging from anxiety to depression are far more likely than others to abuse alcohol or other drugs, scientists said Wednesday.

Interviews conducted with 20,291 people in the general community and in institutions found those with disorders such as phobias and panic attacks were more than twice as likely as those without such disorders to abuse alcohol or other drugs, said Dr. Darrel Regier of the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md.

The finding provides "clear and persuasive evidence that mental disorders must be addressed as a central part of substance abuse prevention efforts" in the United States, Regier and co-researchers said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The reasons for the high rates of co-existing mental problems and substance abuse are unclear, Regier said. Although some studies have suggested that mental disorders precede drug and alcohol dependency, he said there is "increasing argument" that certain disorders are the result — not the cause — of substance abuse.

Researchers conducted interviews during a four-year period with adults aged 18 and older in communities in five geographical areas and with occupants of mental institutions, prisons and nursing homes. The scientists recorded the percentage who experienced either mental disorders or substance abuse or both.

Mental disorders were classified into four primary categories: schizophrenia; "affective" disorders such as major depression; antisocial personality disorder; and anxiety including phobias and panic disorder.

The study found that among those with any lifetime diagnosis of a mental disorder, 22.3 percent had a history of alcohol abuse, compared with 11 percent of those with no such diagnosis.

For drugs other than alcohol, the comparative risk of addiction among those with mental problems was even greater. Among those with disorder diagnoses, 14.7 percent were classified as "drug abuse dependent" compared to only 3.7 percent of those with no mental disorders.

In addition, Regier said people with a lifetime history of alcoholism were twice as likely as others to suffer disorders.

Frankfurters recalled because of bacteria

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Chicago food processor is voluntarily recalling 10,000 pounds of beef frankfurters and 1,400 pounds of deli beef franks because they may contain an illness-causing bacteria, the government said Monday.

The recall by David Berg & Co. applies to 10,000 pounds of bulk-packed "David Berg Beef Frankfurters" and 1,400 pounds of "David Berg Deli Beef Franks."

The bulk-packed frankfurters were distributed in California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Texas. The franks were distributed to grocery stores and supermarkets in the Chicago area.

The Food Safety Inspection Service said the product may contain the bacteria that can cause listeriosis, a rare but potentially serious disease.

The problem was discovered during routine testing.

No illnesses have been reported but the inspection service urged consumers, hotdog vendors and food service establishments to return any of the suspect items to the seller.

The bulk-packed products covered by the recall were sold in 10-pound boxes and carry the words "Est. 1" inside the Agriculture Department seal on the label as well as carrying the code 60250 on the bottom of the box.

Health information network helps schools stay 'healthy'

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Colleges and universities across the nation are plugging into a resource network designed to improve the physical and emotional health of college students.

The Wellness Information Resource Center began operation recently with 440 colleges and universities as members. The purpose of the center is to share information on the topic of wellness.

"Wellness" refers to a person's physical, mental and social well-being, said Ruth Warren, who coordinates the center from its base at Ball State University.

"Many colleges are starting wellness programs for their students, faculty and staff," Warren said. "The Wellness Information Resource Center is a means for these schools to communicate with each other about wellness."

Wellness programs include a wide variety of activities covering such topics as stress management, nutrition, substance abuse, exercise and seat belt use.

Wesley Foundation to offer tutor program for students

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

The Wesley Foundation will soon be offering study assistance for more than just the Bible.

Starting in the spring, a new tutoring program designed especially for freshmen and entering students will be offered, said the Rev. Ken Wallace, director of the Wesley Foundation United Methodist Campus Ministry.

The Wesley Foundation currently does not have a tutoring program, but Wallace said the Wesley Foundation is going to do what it can to help ease the need for tutors.

Wallace said the idea for a tutoring program came to him a couple of years ago. And he has been in contact with the Center for Basic Skills since the beginning of the semester, said Barbara Waugh, tutorial coordinator for CBS.

CBS will refer students who need tutoring to the Wesley Foundation if it does not have the facilities to handle them, Waugh said.

The Wesley Foundation is currently looking for people willing to volunteer their time as a tutor.

"This is strictly on a volunteer basis," Wallace said. Tutors do not need to be associated with the University, he said. They can come from the community as well.

The tutors also do not need to have a teaching degree, Wallace said. Undergraduates, graduates and retired people can help with this program.

Wallace said the details of the tutoring program have not been completed yet.

But he does have some definite ideas on how he wants it to run.

Students interested in the program would need to do is call the Wesley Foundation, Wallace said, and state what subject he or she needs tutoring in and the most available time for tutoring.

The Wesley Foundation would then match a tutor

Graphic by Jay Wilson

with a student, he said.

"There are a lot of people out there who need (tutoring) and are not asking," Wallace said.

If the Wesley Foundation can not handle all of the requests, because of lack of tutors' time or not having a tutor with the expertise needed by the student, referrals to other organizations or University departments will be made.

Wallace said he has not contacted the departments on campus yet, but hopes they will be willing to help.

"There is a real need for more tutoring programs," Waugh said, "especially for freshmen."

To volunteer, contact the Ken Wallace or Sandi Commons-Martin at the Wesley Foundation at 457-8165.

Hill House helps hungry

Residents combine efforts with the Newman Center to fix feast

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Residents of Carbondale's Hill House are discovering that it is better to give than to receive.

They are giving their help so that others can receive when the Newman Catholic Student Center provides its annual Thanksgiving meal, Thursday afternoon.

The Hill House is a substance abuse treatment and rehabilitation center for adolescents as well as adults, said Malisa James, executive director of the Hill House.

Adolescents living at Hill House have helped the Newman Center for about 10 years, said Linda Brayfield, meals coordinator for the Newman Center.

"This will be the best Thanksgiving I've ever had," said Mark, a resident of Hill House. (All names of Hill House residents have been changed to protect their identities.)

Mark said he has been away from home for the past four Thanksgivings and said it will feel good to help others enjoy Thanksgiving.

"Some years if it wasn't for Hill House we wouldn't have made it," Brayfield said.

By Thursday evening, more than 30 residents of Hill House will have cleaned, prepared and served food for an expected crowd of about 1,000.

Last Saturday, residents began by cleaning the Newman Center and sanitizing the kitchen.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are spent making 75 to 80 pies and chopping vegetables, Brayfield said.

"I've never done anything before that I didn't get something in return," said Rick, also a resident of Hill House.

Hill House residents help support those who go to the Newman Center for the meal as well as those in charge of its preparation, Brayfield said. They do this not only by helping with preparation and cleaning but by being there for those who come to participate.

"There are a lot of people who don't have support," Mark said. "I feels good to help."

"We will have a chance to give something back," said Melissa, also a resident of Hill House.

The meal will begin at noon and food will be served until 2 p.m.

"We won't turn anybody away as long as we have food," Brayfield said.

Immigrants made St. Jude famous

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Feeling alone, bereft and abandoned amidst chaotic changes, many Catholic women in the immigrant neighborhoods of Chicago began to turn to an obscure saint during the late 1920s.

He was St. Jude Thaddeus, patron saint of hopeless cases and lost causes. His only historic association had been in a shrine in Santiago, Chile, where he was the patron saint of prostitutes.

The women's dire need for comfort resulted in the most popular post-immigration devotion to a saint in U.S. history, according to Robert Orsi, Indiana University religious studies professor.

In fact, the St. Jude shrine, in a small church on the south side of Chicago, still receives thousands of pieces of mail weekly.

Most Americans may have heard the saint's name in connection with comedian Danny Thomas, who built St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

However, devotion to St. Jude was nurtured and spread almost exclusively by women, especially by the descendants of European immigrants who were facing financial and emotional hardships in Chicago's steel mill neighborhoods, said Orsi, who received a National Endowment for the Humanities grant to research the phenomenon for a book.

Orsi said Jude had no local tradition or rich legends — he was said to be a cousin of Jesus who was clubbed to death by a pagan priest in Persia — but his obscurity may have been part of his appeal.

"The emptiness of Jude in the tradition became the space these women could fill with their imaginations," the IU professor said.

The saint was established in 1928 in a small, poor church in Chicago by a priest who had chanced upon a prayer card to St. Jude while in Prescott, Ariz. The priest commissioned a St. Jude statue, which was placed in an inferior position to one of St. Theresa of the Little Flower, Orsi said.

"Father Tort looked at popular devotionism as a way to raise money, expecting a small but steady contribution from women. He pitted the two saints against each other."

Prompt authorization of force by Bush unlikely

PARIS (UPI) — President Bush pressed an intensive behind-the-scenes campaign to round up support for the use of force against Iraq's Saddam Hussein Tuesday, but his spokesmen acknowledged any quick action on a new U.N. resolution was unlikely.

Speaking at the close of a second day of consultations regarding the Persian Gulf crisis, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said concerns remained over the timing and precise language of a United Nations resolution authorizing the use of force.

He said no final decisions had been made nor a timetable set for introduction of such a measure, adding, "It is very unlikely we would have anything very specific" in the near future.

For now, the United States will focus on contacting the countries involved in the unprecedented international effort against Saddam, and "having everybody on board with the same conclusions," he said.

He also indicated the United States would not press forward without U.N. backing. "We agree it is time to return to the United Nations and to consider action in the U.N. context."

A day after coming up short in an effort to win outright Soviet backing for a force resolution, Bush sounded his own note of patience, telling reporters on the sidelines of the 34-nation meeting of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe: "Just be patient and ... all will be well."

Asked if he was seeking Turkey's support for such a new U.N. resolution, which would mark an unprecedented 11 from the international body following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2, Bush said he had no complaints about Turkey's support. "Turkey and the United States are side by side in this," Bush told reporters.

Fitzwater also was optimistic the U.S. effort would succeed and that ground had already been gained. "I remain optimistic today," he said in reference to talks with the Soviets.

"When you have this kind of discussion in this depth, there have been a lot of little understandings. But we're at a point where neither side wants to make a statement at this time."

Discussions concerning the Iraqi situation continued to overshadow Bush's three-day stay in the City of Lights, part of a week long, 16,000-mile swing through Europe and the Middle East.

Sought by Bush to garner support for further U.N. action, the discussions took on greater urgency with Saddam's announcement Monday he intends to dispatch another 250,000 troops into Kuwait.

Also lashing out at Saddam's latest offer to free German hostages, Fitzwater accused the Iraqi president of using "any pretext to split the alliance. And our response is: It's not going to work."

Assembly to watch its spending.

"It's scary considering the state spends $70 million to $90 million a day," Owens said. "Whenever the balance drops below $200 million we get nervous. We had to hold up some payments on bills last month just to make ends meet."

Ideally, the comptroller's office would like to see the balance at $400 million, he said.

The balance was $541 million in July, Owens said.

"The legislature knew we had a lot of money to spend, and they started spending more," he said.

The governor's office is not as worried about the financial picture as the comptroller, said Jim Bray, spokesman for the governor.

"There's no dispute the budget is tight this year," Bray said. "We're watching it."

But the governor's office sees revenue coming in pretty much as expected, he said. Unlike the governor's office, the comptroller does not make projections on what the state will be bringing in, Bray said.

The governor has vetoed legislation which he felt would be unnecessary spending, he said.

"The national economy does appear to be in trouble," Bray said. "Now is not the time to override the governor's vetoes."

Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, said he will be taking a very close look at the situation when the General Assembly goes back into the fall veto session.

"We were very concerned that the state not overspend," Rea said. "With a new administration coming in, it may be left without sufficient funds."

Rea said he was not sure the fiscal picture reflected a sluggish economy.

"It could be an abundance of spending that may not be necessary," he said.

Pettit said strategic directions must be translated into specific priorities.

"We must be prepared to pursue our agenda without a significant infusion of new money," Pettit said. "We must be more creative both in our approach to soliciting new money and in our efforts to save money."

Pettit said the faculty could play a role in getting more University by getting more involved in private fundraising.

Only two questions were directed at Pettit by faculty at the meeting.

"We took questions until there were none," said Don Garner, faculty senate president.

Journalism Professor Dennis Lowry, said he was surprised that more questions were not asked.

Pettit was asked by a faculty member to justify pay raises in the chancellor's office and the law school.

Pettit replied that the equity adjustments in the chancellor's office were consistent with the board of trustees salary plan and University practices.

Pettit said that during the past four years faculty salaries have increased 6 percent per year, not much less than universities that increased tuition beyond that of SIUC.

Hans Rudnick, professor of English and chairman of the graduate council, said teachers from the University are hired away at an "alarming rate" to increase their salaries.

In response to the low faculty turnout at the meeting, Rudnick said the faculty is depressed because they think what they do will not help change things.

for a military withdrawal. The spokeswoman said there might be more who left without notifying the University.

At Northwestern University in Chicago there have been no students called to active duty, said Donald Gwinn, registrar for Northwestern.

"We have a pretty traditional student population and I've been surprised there have been no students called to duty," Gwinn said. "Our administration recently finished a policy to deal with students who get called to active duty."

In early October the SIU Board of Trustees passed a policy which grants students a full refund on tuition and mandatory fees if called to active duty.

The policy also states that University employees with at least half-time appointments will stay on the payroll for up to one calendar year and will receive the difference between their military and University pay and all benefits.

powers and we will respond completely in those and other areas," Thornburgh said.

At a news conference to announce the suit, Dellums was joined by Reps. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Marcy Kaptur, D-Ohio. They urged the president not to repeat mistakes made during the Vietnam War.

Raising the specter of 58,000 Americans who died in Vietnam,

Kaptur said "they fought an undeclared war that split this nation in two."

"We must meet our constitutional responsibility to deliberate and vote on any act of war," she said. "I promised myself I would never be a part of an undeclared war."

"There is no necessity for quick action," Edwards said.

showdown between the woman known popularly as the "Iron Lady" and the man nicknamed "Taran."

"I am naturally very pleased that I got more than half of the parliamentary party votes and disappointed it was not quite enough," Thatcher told reporters in Paris where she was attending a 34-nation security conference. "I am confirming that I will let my name go forward for the second ballot."

Heseltine, Thatcher's former defense secretary, also said he would compete.

Emerging from his London home in the well-heeled Belgravia neighborhood, Heseltine said, "I am overwhelmed with gratitude to my parliamentary colleagues who in such large measure have given me their support."

Pentagon officials examine Iraqi boast of troop increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Iraqi announcement that another 250,000 troops will be sent to Kuwait does not automatically mean the United States will rush more troops to the region, a Pentagon official said Tuesday.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said there has been no evidence yet that Saddam Hussein has started moving forces forward into Iraq. There are more than 430,000 Iraqi soldiers with 3,500 tanks located in and around Kuwait.

"If they are going to do it, it could well take a long time. It could take over a month to do it," said Williams.

"As Gen. (Colin) Powell pointed out this morning, the additional troops they are talking about would probably be less capable than the troops that are deployed there now. It is not clear that if this announcement were followed through that it would add to the combat power."

"These forces probably wouldn't be as well trained or well equipped as the forces that are there now," added Williams.

Should Iraq follow through, he said, "It would be a further tightening of its grip on occupied Kuwait and just the opposite of what the world community has asked Iraq to do, which is to withdraw from Kuwait."

Some military authorities have suggested that extra Iraqi troops could increase the vulnerability of the Iraqi army, particularly because of the strain it would put on supply lines.

Williams, asked if it might require additional U.S. forces to counter and maintain a credible option to go on the offense, said:

"That's an impossible calculation to make now. It may well be that we don't need to send any more. It depends on who they send."

Just the addition of sheer numbers in itself doesn't necessarily ... give Iraq an addition to its combat power."

Police Blotter

An attempted robbery occurred at the University Mall Monday at 7:30 p.m., Carbondale Police said.

A 16-year-old female from Murphysboro was exiting the east side of the mall when she was confronted by a man who claimed to have a gun and demanded money, police said.

The victim asked the man to show her the gun and he claimed he didn't have one and again demanded her money.

Police said the victim turned to walk away and the attacker grabbed her by the hair. She told police she kicked him in the groin and fled.

The suspect was described as a white male, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 200 pounds, wearing a black jacket, jeans and a black ski mask, police said. The incident is under investigation.

Ethics council attacked in Keating Five hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Late in the first day of the Keating Five influence-peddling hearings before the Senate ethics committee, panel special counsel Robert Bennett, the target of sniping from lawyers representing the accused senators, turned in frustration to the committee chairman.

"Mr. Bennett, you're not on trial here," Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., assured the stocky, bulldog of a lawyer.

"I'm glad you said that," Bennett responded with a laugh. Heflin was wrong.

The three senators painted as most deeply involved with indicted savings and loan kingpin Charles Keating Jr. — Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Donald Riegle, D-Mich. — are seeking to put Bennett on trial, hoping to convince the six members of the ethics committee that Bennett has trumped up claims against them in an effort to enhance his own reputation as senator-killer. And the threesome has sought to shift attention from themselves and onto Bennett with a vengeance.

"He wants a victory," DeConcini said. "He wants another trophy on the wall as someone who has represented the committee and been able to nail up another senator for ethical misconduct."

The three senators believe Bennett is overstepping his authority as the committee's special counsel — a sort of fact-finding lawyer — and has become the equivalent of a criminal prosecutor. Bennett's adversarial style and painfully direct approach in laying out his case rubbed the senators and their lawyers all wrong.

Bennett, a partner in a prestigious Washington law firm, is well-experienced in Senate ethics probes. He led the Senate's ethics investigation of Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., which resulted in the Senate denouncing the senator in July. He also spearheaded the panel's investigation into Sen. Harrison Williams' activities in the Abscam scandal, which led to the senator's resignation.

The fact that his opponents find him abrasive, perhaps, should be no surprise considering his family ties. The same has been said of his brother, William Bennett, who recently resigned as President Bush's drug policy chief and is in line to become the new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

DeConcini cautioned, "I don't raise Mr. Bennett and his conduct as any defense or smokescreen." But Bennett said that's exactly what the three senators are seeking to do.

"I have swum in Senate legal waters for a long time, like a fat old brown trout in Yellowstone River," Bennett told the committee. "I'm not going to rise to that artificial fly (of shifting the attention in the case to a lawyer rather than the issue at hand)."

Governor backs admission of women to all-male VMI

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Gov. L. Douglas Wilder broke his silence Tuesday over the admission of women to Virginia Military Institute, saying he believes the school's historic all-male policy is discriminatory and should be abandoned.

Wilder stopped short of suggesting that the state stop fighting a federal lawsuit seeking to reverse the admissions policy, but he hinted he may cut off state funds if the school in Lexington remains closed to women.

"As a legal conclusion, the determination of whether VMI's present admission policy is discriminatory must be made by the court," Wilder said.

"I can state, however, that had I to make the determination for the court, or had to make the decision, period, I would admit women," he said.

Asked whether he wanted Virginia to lose the case, Wilder said, "I'm saying as a defendant in this case, it is my judgment that state-supported schools should not discriminate on race or gender."

In March the Justice Department filed suit in U.S. District Court in Roanoke saying VMI's all-male policy violates the Constitution and the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The suit was filed after an unidentified student from northern Virginia complained that she had been turned down by the school.

Until Tuesday, Wilder had refused any comment on VMI's admissions policy on the grounds that it was pending litigation.

He broke his silence the same day he filed a motion with U.S. District Judge Jackson Kiser saying he would not appeal the judge's ruling that he remain a defendant in the suit.

The high-profile governor, seen as a possible 1992 Democratic vice presidential candidate, emphasized that his announcement was not motivated by political considerations.

"I'm not interested in national office," Wilder said. "It has nothing to do with the future or the past."

Thrift king paid too much, experts say

DALLAS (UPI) — A California leasing agent testified Tuesday that thrift king Don Dixon paid five times too much for a posh corporate beachfront home which prosecutors say was devoted largely to "sex parties."

"There is no way you can justify what was paid, even under the most optimistic circumstances," said Lori Goetz, a leasing agent testifying as a prosecution witness.

The home, located in Solana Beach, Calif., should have leased for $3,000 to $3,500 a month during the mid-1950s when Dixon arranged payments, she testified.

Instead, Dixon paid between $13,000 to $15,000 a month in a complicated arrangement in which tax benefits were swapped with the home's owner and the entire package was subsidized through loans furnished by Dixon's thrift, Vernon Savings and Loan.

In a 38-count indictment, Dixon is accused of illegally filtering expenses used for prostitutes, politicians and high living through Vernon corporate accounts. When Vernon failed in 1987, taxpayers were socked with $1.3 billion in losses.

Goetz said she examined dozens of properties in the area and multiple listings going back to 1986.

Her initial estimate on the home was for $3,000 a month, but "because there were two executive suites which technically could be shared by two families I added an extra four or five hundred dollars," she said.

Preseason NIT field boasts three of nation's top teams

NEW YORK (UPI) — Digger Phelps loves to come home for the holidays, but the Notre Dame coach looked a bit out of place in midtown Manhattan Tuesday.

It's not that Phelps was lost in his hometown, it was the company he was keeping.

Phelps, at a news conference with Lute Olson, Nolan Richardson and Mike Krzyzewski, respective coaches of the No. 2, 3, and 6th ranked teams in the nation, realizes his team is a clear underdog for the preseason National Invitation Tournament.

"This tournament will be a great opportunity for us to come in and see just how good we really are," said Phelps whose team faces No. 2 Arizona in Wednesday night's second semifinal. "I think our kids look at this as an opportunity and a challenge in order to get an identity. It's our chance to go out and step up."

In Wednesday's first semifinal game, No. 3 Arkansas plays No. 6 Duke in a rematch of their Final Four semifinal last season, in which Duke outran Arkansas 97-83.

"I think that the organizers in Indianapolis (site of the 1991 Final Four) would love to have a field with three of the top six teams making it to the Final Four," said Phelps, in his 20th season at Notre Dame.

Notre Dame, 2-0, features junior forward LaPhonso Ellis, the nation's top returning ret under from a year ago, and junior guard Elmer Bennett.

Phelps, in his 20th year at Notre Dame, said his team has unified since receiving the painful off-season news that standout freshman forward Monty Williams would not be able to play this season because of a heart disease.

"The team took it real hard and at the press conference many of them started to cry," said Phelps. "After that, the seniors began to hug and really begin taking care of the freshmen. There's something special about this team that I can't explain now. They're a great group."

Olson, whose Wildcats are 2-0 after victories over Austin Peay and East Tennessee State, likes the idea of playing such tough competition this early in the season.

"You're able to get four games under your belt before the rest of the country has an opportunity to play one," said Olson, who has taken teams to the NCAA tournament in 11 of the last 12 years. "I think playing in these games is what's important and not necessarily how well you play."

The Wildcats are as well balanced a team as there is in the country with their biggest strength being the frontcourt of Brian Williams, Sean Rooks and Kentucky transfer Chris Mills. Ed Stokes, a 7-foot shot blocker, rotates at center.

Big 10 coaches support regulation of college football bowl bidding

CHICAGO (UPI) — If Iowa Coach Hayden Fry had his way, eight college football teams would square off at the end of the season in a playoff format to determine the national champion.

Purdue's Fred Akers said he would rather preserve the Big 10 teams' fight for the Rose Bowl, and let the media and the fans argue over who's the best in the college ranks.

All Big 10 coaches Tuesday agreed on one thing: post-season bowl selection needs some regulation or teams will be receiving bids before the first kickoff.

"I can see somebody get an invitation early in the season just to not lose a commitment," Fry said Tuesday during the Big 10 coaches conference call.

"I really think it's ridiculous," he said. "The fine gentlemen (bowl representatives) who come in here from all over the country and say 'we're going to hold it for you, coach' and two hours later, say 'well, we couldn't wait.' It's unethical."

Determining a real No. 1 team is another matter.

"I'm not in favor of a national champion," Akers said. "I think there are better ways to go. I haven't seen a real plan that I think would be better than what we have."

"I do think we will have some way for a national champion to be decided and I don't think it'll be what's best for college football, but done for the money."

Post-season bowl games mean big bucks for schools participating. Six Big 10 teams have a chance this year at a bowl, including the league's own Rose Bowl. Entering the final Saturday of regular season play, No. 11 Iowa and No. 17 Ohio State have a chance at a trip to Pasadena, Calif. The Hawkeyes, 8-2 overall and 6-1 in the Big Ten, must beat Minnesota, 5-5 and 4-3, while the Buckeyes play host to No. 15 Michigan, 7-3 and 5-2, in a nationally televised game.

In other conference games, No. 20 Illinois, which has committed to the Hall of Fame Bowl on Jan. 1 against Clemson, will play Northwestern; Indiana, which has a chance to go to the Peach Bowl on Dec. 29, travels to Purdue; and No. 23 Michigan State, which will play in the Hancock Bowl Dec. 31 against Southern Cal, finishes against Wisconsin.

"I don't know if I would consider the bowl situation messy," said Illinois Coach John Mackovic, whose team will be playing its third straight post-season bowl game. "I think it's interesting."

Foreman, Holyfield kick off hype

NEW YORK (UPI) — All the major players acted in character Tuesday when the Evander Holyfield-George Foreman April 19 heavyweight championship bout was officially announced.

Foreman, a former champion, boasted he would stop Holyfield in two rounds to become the oldest and one of the heaviest heavyweight champions in history.

Champion Holyfield spoke matter-of-factly of how he had nothing to gain from the bout but a $20 million payday and already looked ahead to a fight with Mike Tyson.

Promoters Dan Duva and Bob Arum and casino owner Donald Trump, who will host the fight at his Atlantic City, N.J., Trump Plaza, gushed about how great an event they will put on.

"Folks are going to see the oldest heavyweight champion of the world," said Foreman, who turns 43 in January. "It's my destiny to be the oldest heavyweight champion of the world."

And one of the fattest. Foreman, who has weighed over 250 for nearly all of his 24 comeback fights, was interrupted during the news conference at a Manhattan hotel by a room service order of hamburgers and a whole turkey.

"The title belt ain't going to fit me, but I'll tape it around my waist," Foreman said.

"I'll win in two rounds — one for the show, and two he must go. Then I'm going to stand by my mail box and wait for my social security check. I want to be the first heavyweight champion on social security."

Foreman entered the room to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again" with an entourage of senior citizens carrying signs saying "Life Begins at 40," "Respect Your Elders," "Over The Hill" and "Eat Em Up George."

"I don't think this is a circus," Foreman said later. "I don't think I'm playing."

Holyfield, 28, entered the room surrounded by children. Holyfield, who took the title with a third-round knockout of Buster Douglas Oct. 25, was all business as usual but admitted he finds Foreman funny.

"It's amusing," Holyfield said. "He's a man with a lot of confidence. You use what you have, and George is a heavy man."

Holyfield, a 4-1 favorite, has a lot of confidence as well. He knows Foreman's $12.5 million payday will be earned more for his personality than fighting ability.

"I'm in almost a no-win situation," Holyfield said. "If I win, they'll say he's too old and too heavy. But it's something the public wants to see."

"Mike Tyson will be my next opponent," he said of another fight the public wants. "I know he deserves it. I respect Mike Tyson as a past heavyweight champion and for what he means to the sport."

Foreman means ticket sales, and Trump Plaza officials project a sellout of the 20,000-plus seat Convention Center with tickets ranging from $100 to $1,000. The fight will be televised on pay-per-view and closed circuit.

"This is the most exciting promotion, the most exciting event, in the history of sports," gushed Duva, saying nothing about an exciting fight.

House narcotics chairman knocks NFL's Manley ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Narcotics Chairman Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., criticized the NFL Monday for letting Dexter Manley return to football one year after he was suspended for drug abuse, saying it tells America's youth "doing drugs is fine if you can get away with it."

"Professional football can no longer claim to be tough on drugs. This decision makes a mockery of the league's drug policy and trivializes the drug problem in this country," Rangel said in a written statement.

Manley, 32, was suspended from the NFL on Nov. 18, 1989, after he tested positive for cocaine use. It was the defensive end's third violation of the league's substance abuse policy.

Manley, who was waived by the Washington Redskins immediately after the NFL's ruling, has been enrolled in a recovery program in Houston, and he says he has been drug-free for more than a year.

Rangel said the decision by NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue "reinforces the attitude so many young people have that doing drugs is fine if you can get away with it."

"It also reinforces the notion that drug use is excused if you happen to be someone who is well-known and admired by the public. Our youth see that a public figure is treated to a different standard than an ordinary citizen," Rangel said.

Tagliabue met with Manley Friday in New York to discuss Manley's rehabilitation from cocaine and alcohol addiction. The NFL's statement Monday said Tagliabue's decision is conditioned on several factors, including Manley's avoidance of drugs and the player's participation in a structured support program.

But Rangel thought Manley's punishment was too light.

"I always thought the word lifetime meant lifetime — forever. Players who have a substance abuse problem should get all the treatment and rehabilitation they need, but they do not deserve the privilege of returning to play at the professional level," Rangel said.

Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa., the committee's ranking Republican, agreed with Rangel: "By selling their policy as a 'lifetime ban' policy when it is a one-year ban, the NFL has told young people that our culture's anti-drug message is just for show."

SOMETIMES IT TAKES AN ARMY TO PAY BACK YOUR COLLEGE LOAN.

Paying back your college loan can be a long, uphill battle. But the Army's Loan Repayment Program makes it easy.

Each year you serve as a soldier, the Army will reduce your college debt by 1/3 or $1,500, whichever amount is greater. So after serving just 3 years, your college loan will be completely paid off.

You're eligible for this program with a National Direct Student Loan or a Guaranteed Student Loan or a Federally Insured Student Loan made after October 1, 1975. And the loan can't be in default.

And just because you've left college, don't think you'll stop learning in the Army. Our skill training offers a wealth of valuable high-tech, career-oriented skills. Call your local Army Recruiter to find out more.

A's Henderson wins AL MVP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oakland outfielder Ricky Henderson, who used power and speed to lead the Athletics to their third straight pennant, Tuesday won the American League Most Valuable Player Award over Detroit home run king Cecil Fielder.

Henderson earned 14 of the 28 first-place votes from a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. He totaled 317 points. Fielder, the first major-leaguer to hit 50 home runs since 1977, collected 10 first-place votes and 286 points. Henderson and Fielder were the only players to be named on all ballots.

"Of course I feel I should have won," Fielder said. "I can't stand up and say that I didn't have that type of season. I felt I did."

Boston pitching ace Roger Clemens garnered three first-place votes and finished third. Oakland reliever Dennis Eckersley received the other first-place vote.

Two writers from each American League city were asked to name 10 players on their ballots. The point system was 14 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

"It would have been nice to win the award," Fielder said. "But as long as the people around me feel that way, my family feels the way, that's all that matters. I did everything I could do. I can't fill out the ballots, too."

Henderson is the fourth Oakland player to win the MVP and second in three years. Jose Canseco claimed the honor in 1986. Reggie Jackson in 1973 and Vida Blue in 1971. The A's also provided this year's AL Cy Young recipient in Bob Welch.

Henderson led the majors with 119 runs scored and hit .325 to finish second in the AL batting race to Kansas City's George Brett. He also hit a career-high 28 home runs, knocked in 61 runs and stole 65 bases. He'll enter next season two steals short of Lou Brock's career record (198).

His season ended when Oakland was swept by Cincinnati in the World Series. Henderson lifted the A's to the World Series title in 1989 after Oakland acquired him from the Yankees in midseason.

Fielder became the 11th player in major-league history to hit 50 homers in a season. He hit 51 home runs were the most hit by a player since George Foster belted 52 for Cincinnati in 1977.

Fielder accomplished all this after a one-year hiatus in Japan. He had been a part-time player in four seasons with the Toronto Blue Jays before being sold to the Hanshin Tigers.

This season he helped transmute the Detroit Tigers from a last-place team into a third-place club. Fielder also led the majors with 132 RBI.

His most impressive home run, other than his 50th on the final day of the season, was a blast he hit over the left-field roof at Tiger Stadium against Oakland's Dave Stewart. Harmon Killebrew and Frank Howard are the only other players to hit homers over the left-field roof in Detroit.

Salukis sign recruit

Alaskan State High School Champion in the 100-meter backstroke, Tom Treadway, has signed a national letter of intent to attend SIUC.

Treadway, a 6-foot-1, 167 pound senior, captured the backstroke title with a time of :53.70.

"Tom is our first recruit ever from Alaska, as well as our first recruit relying only on video tape," Ingram said. "We are certainly happy he signed with us early because I feel he has tremendous potential and will get stronger as his senior season progresses."

Treadway, who attends Service High School in Anchorage, Alaska, is coached

Ardey given position

SIUC head diving coach Dave Ardey was selected as an alternate on the World Championship staff.

Ardey will attend the World Championship Trials in Lexington, Ky., and would attend the finals in Perth, Australia in January 1991, should the selected coach be unable to make the trip.

"Being named an alternate for the World Championships is a significant tribute for Dave," Ingram said. "He does a tremendous job and this illustrates the way his peers view his ability."

Ardey was in Cape Girardeau Tuesday with his injured diver Kristi Kerrill.

Denver Broncos, Detroit Lions prepare for Thanksgiving game

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The prospect of facing Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway would make Detroit Lions Coach Wayne Fontes feel like giving thanks this week.

"We've had a problem all season with containing quarterbacks who have good mobility and Elway is one of the best," Fontes said as the Lions prepared for their annual Thanksgiving Day game.

"A quarterback with maneuverability concerns me," Fontes continued. "He has a great arm, but if you break the pocket he'll run 30 yards and he can run over you. He poses a great threat for our defense."

Denver Coach Dan Reeves said the Lions' offense concerns him.

"Our biggest problem is the run-and-shoot and the fact nobody we've played has used it this year,"

Reeves said. "That's what concerns me about the short week. You'd like to have your regular practice to work on defending it."

Most teams have concentrated on stopping running back Barry Sanders when they've played the Lions. Reeves admitted Sanders is a key to the Detroit offense, but not the only one.

"I think Sanders is a great threat and they'll try to sleep with him," Reeves said. "He doesn't get the ball very often, but when he does big things can happen."

"You can't afford to zero in on Sanders when they're using four receivers," Reeves said. "Their quarterback situation also concerns me. I don't know which one they'll use and each one does different things better."

Fontes is hoping Rodney Peete will have recovered from a hamstring pull in time to make the start at quarterback in Thursday's game, but if he doesn't, either veteran Bob Gagliano or rookie Andre Ware will get the nod.

The Lions have scored only seven points in the two games Peete has missed with the injury, so Fontes would like to get the second-year pro from USC back in the lineup.

Ware started in the Lions' 17-7 loss to Minnesota two weeks ago and Gagliano was the starting quarterback in last Sunday's 20-0 loss to the New York Giants.

"Rodney hasn't been scrambling around yet," Fontes said. "We'll have to see if he can plant his foot and if he can run if he has to."

Lions and Broncos enter the game with 3-7 records.

Roger Clemens fined, suspended for tantrum

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roger Clemens was suspended for the first five games of the 1991 season and fined $10,000 by American League President Bobby Brown Tuesday for the Boston pitcher's behavior during Game 4 of the league playoffs.

With Oakland leading the Red Sox 3-0 in Game 4, Clemens was Boston's Game 4 starter but was ejected by home plate umpire Terry Cooney after arguing a call in the second inning. Clemens charged Cooney after the ejection and was restrained by teammates.

The Oakland Athletics won the game to complete a sweep of the series.

According to a statement released by the league office, Clemens was disciplined "for making significant physical contact with an umpire (Jim Evans), for threatening umpire Terry Cooney, for verbally abusing umpire Cooney with personal obscenities and for not leaving the Boston Red Sox's dugout immediately after the ejection."

Clemens can appeal the fine and suspension.

Paterno not worried about letdown

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Riding an emotional high after its upset over Notre Dame, 10th-ranked Penn State must come down to earth Saturday for its season finale against Pitt.

The Nittany Lions, who won their eighth straight game when they defeated the then top-ranked Fighting Irish 24-21, must not overlook Pitt, which is a disappointing 3-6-1 this season.

"I hope we don't have a letdown," Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said Tuesday. "If we do, we'll get licked. We could get licked even without a letdown. Pitt is a good football team that has killed itself."

"I never saw a team that can do so many things well, just when it seems like they're ready to put somebody away, they do something to hurt themselves. They have some great athletes who can do a lot of things well. If we don't play really well, we'll get licked."

"It's as simple as that and if they don't realize that, then they'll get licked."

While Penn State has won eight in a row after opening the season with two losses, Pitt has dropped its last four games, including a 28-18 decision to Temple its last time out.

The Nittany Lions handed Temple a 48-10 beating earlier this season but Paterno said his team won't take the Panthers lightly.

"Penn State-Pitt is a big game for both schools," he said. "In 1984, they weren't having a very good year and they knocked our ears in. It wasn't even close. They beat us 34-10 or something (actually 31-11). I know they gave us a good licking."

And Paterno said the same thing could happen again if his team spends more time thinking about the Notre Dame game than preparing for Pitt.

"It would be nice if you could stop and think about it a little bit but you can't," he said. "The squad has some time on Sunday and Monday and I hope they enjoyed it."

few players this season who are betting the streak will come to an end.

The starting lineup in Las Vegas will have senior Alison Smith at the off-guard and sophomore Anita Scott at the point. Scott won the preseason duel with junior Colleen Heimstead for the starting duties.

The frontcourt will see a pair of bookend sophomores in Angie Rougeau and Kelly Firth. Between the two, they have 20 starts as freshmen last season, so inexperience is not a major factor.

But one person who will be a major factor is senior center Amy Rakers, a preseason high honorable mention All-American in Street and Smith's magazine. Scott wants to get more balanced scoring for her team this season, but in the crunch, Rakers should get the ball.

After the San Francisco game, granted the Salukis win, they will probably play powerful University of Nevada Las Vegas, who will open the tourney against Alabama. The Lady Rebels were 28-3 last year, but have lost Kodak All-American Pauline Jordan. Still, UNLV has enough returnees to be ranked anywhere from 10th to 17th in various national polls.

Scott said despite the immense challenge UNLV poses, she won't alter her gameplan in any shape. Not shape, but maybe speed.
